

STUDENT BULLETIN

Week beginning Monday, 30 January 2017

VALUE FOR THE MONTH: INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY
THEME FOR THE WEEK: INTELLIGENCE WITHOUT AMBITION IS LIKE A BIRD WITHOUT WINGS' (SALVADOR DALI)

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate our students, Sam Burns and Ben Nelson for a magnificent debating display on behalf of our school. They took on Latymer School and Winchmore School to reach the next stage of the National Debating Competition.

Can we also wish our Year 9's much success in the important progression process that they will be embarking upon. Year 8's will follow this process soon.

I would also like to congratulate our students involved in the Barbican Poets initiative which will culminate in a live performance of this poetry and publication of their works. I know there are many initiatives that you are involved in that are worthy of mention and well done for those too.

Whether you are debating, writing poetry, doing Maths, excelling in sport, or trying out Salsa, remember to love the thing you do 'for itself' and not because you want recognition. These are the first steps towards the 'intelligence' that Dali talks about in the quote above. The freedom to be the 'bird with wings' comes from finding the thing you love and pursuing it with a passion.

SALSA WORKSHOP

Some Year 7 and 10 Spanish and Music classes had the pleasure of welcoming Garry and Giselle, professional salsa and bachata dance teachers in to teach them a routine. We were all impressed with how all the pupils took part and tried their best. Well done, you made us all very proud and should be very proud of yourselves. Keep dancing!
